Growing Wild Ltd is a wildflower seed production company based on Sibsey Road in Boston. We started the company when Johnsons Seeds went into receivership in 1998 and started renting the research and development site from the ULHT who bought the site from the receivers.

We are one of the largest producers of wildflower seeds in the country, supplying the national seed companies on a wholesale basis.

We handle every process from seed to seed. Sowing seed, raising plants, planting them into the field, maintaining them until harvest. We then dry the seeds in our polytunnels and green houses before cleaning and packing them for sale.

Our lease has terminated by the ULHT and we need to vacate our site by 30th November 2024.

We had already purchased the site at Washdike Nursery anticipating this would happen, so therefore need to ready the site to house the business.

We would like to replicate the building from where we currently operate by placing two portacabin buildings for office and tearoom facilities for our 5 staff.

Two small 20 foot shipping containers are to be placed near the buildings for storage,

We would also like to position two polytunnels opposite the main buildings for seed drying purposes.

We hope these small alterations fall within permitted planning boundaries and are able to commence work as soon as we can.

Yours faithfully, [REDACTED]

David Jenkins – Managing Director, Growing Wild Ltd.
