Dear Alan Watts,

Please find enclosed the amended plans for 10 Freshney Way and details below detailing the reasons for amendments.

1. The height of the roof has risen 150mm from the original plan. This has created the minimum void required beneath the new trusses that enables current plumbing and electrical services for the existing bungalow to remain in place.
2. The glazed window at the back has changed to French doors with a Juliet balcony. The additional glazing being at the bottom half of the window will not create any additional overlooking issues to neighbouring properties. As the original window was an escape window and was required to be situated a maximum of 1.1m above floor level the total additional glazing is 1.1m.
3. The 2 Velux windows shown in the main bedroom has been altered to 3 Velux windows situated in the same position. This is to allow more light into the space and will create no additional overlooking issues.

Kind Regards,

Max Slater
